Waste-Free Coffee

Starbucks is a popular coffee shop. It uses about 7 billion disposable cups each year. This creates a lot of waste. More than one-third of the company's packaging waste is cups and lids.

To save the earth, Starbucks hopes to cut its waste in half. It wants to reach this goal by 2030. Stores around the world are testing ways to do this.

One plan allows customers to bring their own reusable cups which can be used more than once. Some stores will have washing stations. So everything can be cleaned for use. There are also plans for a borrow-a-cup program. Customers pay a small fee to borrow a cup. If they return it, they get the money back as store credit.

How to Do a Cool Calculator Trick?

It's time to take a break from math class and impress your friends with a cool calculator trick. All you need is any type of calculator, and you can easily perform some magical math tricks to impress them. Don't forget to be as dramatic as you can!

Calculator Trick - Reading Someone's Mind

Please follow the steps below:

Step 1 The picture can't be displayed.	Tell someone to pick a number from 1-9 without telling you. Explain to them that you are going to tell them what number they chose at the end. Put on an act that you are reading their mind while they are thinking of a number. This is a super easy math trick, but it's still fun to put on a show!
Step 2 The picture can't be displayed.	Have them multiply their number on a calculator by "9," then by "12345679." Notice that there is no "8" in it. Make sure they do so for the trick to work. Keep pretending you are reading the person's mind while they perform the multiplication.

Step 3

The picture can't be displayed.

Make them pass you the calculator. Tell them you will read their mind and find out what number they chose at the beginning from the calculator. Have them hold the calculator to face you so you can see the number or hand it to you so you can look.

Be careful. Don't let them see the number on the screen in order to create a more dramatic effect.

The picture can't be displayed.

Look at the number and tell them. Whatever number you see repeating on the screen is the number they chose at the beginning. There will only be a string of a single repeating number.

For example, if they chose "1," then the calculator will show "11111111."

What a great magic show! Give it a try next time!

No one should ask us to keep a secret even if it's fun and especially if it makes me sad, scared, or if it's about private parts.
